What does the future hold for humans and space travel? Journey to Space: The Exhibition is a one-of-a-kind exhibit that seeks to answer that question and more by exploring the challenges of living and working in space. Unlike traditional exhibits that focus on the history of space travel, Journey to Space looks into current and future exploration and what is possible.

Journey to Space was designed and developed by the Science Museum of Minnesota in partnership with the International Space Station Office of NASA’s Johnson Space Center, the California Science Center, and partner museums.
