

2022
Annual Report

OMSITM

Dear Friends and Supporters,

In the past year, as we have navigated the pandemic, climate change, learning loss, and so much more, the need for science literacy and evidence-based decision-making has reached new peaks and urgency. Through it all, OMSI has been able to grow, innovate, and deepen our impact with the generosity of our supporters and the amazing resilience of our staff and volunteers. Together we make a real, tangible difference in our communities.

The year brought opportunities for renewal in our communities and at OMSI, where renaissance became a fitting theme. One of our featured exhibits, The World of Leonardo da Vinci, showcased the power of innovation through an exploration of the works and world of the singular Italian Renaissance thinker. In that spirit of renaissance, we also saw triple the number of museum visitors and triple the number of volunteers engaged with OMSI as compared to the previous fiscal year.

We relaunched many of our popular in-person programs while continuing to deliver and create new digital offerings. We lived our commitment to dismantling barriers to high-quality science education for diverse audiences through collaborating with community partners to develop culturally responsive programming. We also invested nearly $800K in access programs—from financial aid to Arts for All discounts and beyond—to connect 65,000 participants with the museum and the fun science learning experiences that we provide.

OMSI is uniquely positioned to bring communities throughout the Pacific Northwest together to inspire solutions that address our collective challenges and improve long-term outcomes for all. You help make this possible! Thank you for joining us to encourage informed action through science education across the region.

With gratitude,

Erin Graham
President and CEO

Strategic Investments

OMSI ACCELERATED

OMSI Accelerated is our 2020–2025 campaign that prioritizes key investments and outcomes to make progress toward our destination. We are committed to being a change agent to improve STEAM education for children and families throughout the Northwest.

Natural Sciences

This past year OMSI worked with BIPOC and rural organizations to help us vision and plan the new Natural Sciences hall. The hall will demonstrate climate change education and tell stories that highlight the interconnectedness of our region's communities. The space will become a place for communities across the PNW to share their knowledge, challenges, and solutions to climate action. Our campaign to honor Nancy Steuber will rename the hall in recognition of her leadership and love of our region's amazing natural spaces. Construction is slated to begin Spring 2024.

Early Childhood

OMSI's early childhood education addresses not only kids' learning, but that of their caregivers as well. Portland Metro-based Play Labs combines hands-on STEM activities designed for our 1–6 year-old visitors and lessons on brain development for their caregivers. Play Labs have included everything from drawing Fibonacci spirals in nature, to experimenting with standard and non-standard measurements, to comparing and describing everyday objects. Families also have unstructured playtime and year-long museum memberships to keep learning together in OMSI-supported spaces.

Digital Learning

Our Digital Learning Initiative will reduce geographical and cultural barriers and enhance our service to educators and parents. Over the past year, OMSI educators and teens have been creating digital content in our new recording studio and testing ways to translate our hands-on learning to the screen. By creating culturally responsive and accessible science learning opportunities, OMSI will engage new audiences, broaden the extensive reach we have through our statewide outreach work, and complement our in-person programs with digital content.

OMSI for ALL

We're working to decrease barriers to OMSI experiences — physical, cultural, and financial. We're also looking at our systems to reduce our carbon footprint and improve the ways we work. Investments have included gender-neutral bathrooms and shower facilities, water bottle filling stations, and solar panels that help power our building. We are revamping how we fund access to museum programming by underwriting the costs of field trips and deepening our partnerships with community-based organizations to work intentionally to broaden and deepen access to OMSI's hands-on education.

OMSI is an independent nonprofit 501(c)3 organization that receives no ongoing state or local tax funding for our operations. Support from individuals, corporations, and foundations makes our work possible.

Nancy Stueber Natural Sciences Hall Campaign

From its very beginning, OMSI made a commitment to make engaging, fun science education available to people across the Pacific Northwest. No one has done more to deliver on that great ambition than our President Emeritus, Nancy Stueber.

During her 20 years leading OMSI, we expanded our impact to reach learners across the region through one of the largest outreach programs of any science museum in the US and increased our scholarship and reduced admission programs. We also served a million+ visitors in typical years with exhibits and programs that lead the field in innovative approaches to uplifting diverse audiences in pursuit of an equitable, educated, and curious society.

As we update the Natural Sciences Hall, we plan to rename it in honor of Nancy Stueber's service to children and families across the Northwest. We will refresh the Hall to tell the story of the Pacific Northwest's bioregions, helping visitors build an understanding of climate change while developing their identity as agents for climate action. By considering the disparate impacts of climate change and understanding their connection to natural systems, participants will feel the urgency and have the agency to take action.

"My teen son REALLY LOVED the new teen space upstairs. He keeps asking me when we will go back again."

Penny Serrurier, OMSI Emeritus Board

“OMSI to me is a place that inspires learning. I see OMSI as a catalyst, a convener, and as a place for all ages to come together to share learning about science and technology.

It’s really satisfying that after my lifetime the good work will continue on. If I can make a contribution that will help sustain the efforts and impact that OMSI is making to better our community, I am happy to do that.”

As a frequent visitor to OMSI, Penny remembers playing with her two boys in Science Playground. She believes that by making a provision for OMSI in her estate plan will not only help keep OMSI financially stable to ensure that hands-on science learning is possible. It will also inspire others to join her in the J.C. Stevens Legacy Society.

"Thanks for the good COVID protocols.
I feel OMSI maintains a good balance between engaging with the community and volunteer/employee safety."
